Family Life

A "typical" British family used to consist of mother, father and two children, but in recent years there have been many changes in family life. Some of these have been caused by new laws and others are the result of changes in (1) For example, since the law made it easier to get a divorce, the number of divorces has increased. In fact one marriage in every three now ends in divorce. This means that there are a lot of (2) ... families. Society is now more tolerant than it used to be of unmarried people, unmarried couples and single parents.

Another change has been caused by the fact that people are living (3) ... nowadays and many old people live alone following the death of their (4) As a result of these changes in the pattern of people's lives, there are many (5) ... which consist of only one person or one person and children. You might think that marriage and the family are not so popular as they once were. However, the majority of (6) ... people marry again and they sometimes take responsibility for the second family. Who looks after the older (7) ...? There are about 10 million old-age pensioners in Britain of whom about 750000 cannot live entirely independently. The government gives financial help in the form of a pension but in the future it will be more and more difficult for the nation economy to support the increasing number of the elderly. At the present time, more than half of all old people are looked after at (8) Many others live in (9) ..., which may be private or state owned.

Clothes and Fashion of the Youth

"Which is the boy and which is the girl?" you may ask walking behind two long-haired young people in a London street. Your question may arise from the fact that the young people are both dressed in jeans and sweaters. A (1) ... may say, "I'm surprised so many girls don't trouble to dress up when they go out with their boy-friends." But another may answer that it's one way they have of showing they are as (2) ... as men.

But the same (3) ... that the girls don't trouble is not correct. Most British girls today take a great deal of interest in clothes and enjoy looking (4) In fact they think much more about (5) ... than their mothers did twenty or more years ago. Not so long ago English women had the reputation of being among the worst dressed women in Europe.

During the 1960s fashion shops for young people were opened all over Britain, and London became the world's most important fashion centre for the young. More than half of the ten million foreign (6) ...

who come to Britain every year are under thirty, and most of them never go further than London. Not only the girls go (7) The boys go to Kensington and also to Chelsea to visit the famous fashion shops of these two districts of London.

It is possible today to dress well (8) ... spending a great deal of money. Many shops sell clothes which are both (9) ... and modern. You would find it difficult to guess from their clothes the social background of the young people you see in the streets.

Bruce and the Spider

Robert Bruce was the most famous of the Kings of Scotland. For many years he fought against the English invaders (1) ... to drive them out of Scotland, but the English (2) ... him and he was almost deserted by his countrymen.

One morning after receiving the last unpleasant information from Scotland Bruce was lying on his bed. While he was thinking of what he should do, he looked upward to the roof of the cabin in which he lay. He saw a spider, which, hanging at the (3) ... of a long thread, was trying to swing itself from one beam in the roof to another. The spider wanted to fix the line on which it meant to stretch its web.

The spider made an attempt again and again but without any success. Bruce (4) ... that the spider had tried to swing itself to another beam six times but with no result. Then Bruce remembered that he had himself fought just six battles against the English invaders but also without any success. The poor spider was exactly in the same (5) ... as he himself, it had made as many attempts, and had been as often disappointed in what it aimed at.

“Now,” thought Bruce, “as I don’t know what is to be done, I’ll be guided by the spider’s (6) ... If it makes another attempt to fix its thread and is successful, I’ll make the seventh attempt to drive out the invaders.”

While Bruce was forming this (7) ... the spider made another attempt and succeeded in fixing its thread to another beam. Bruce, seeing the success of the spider, resolved to try his own fortune. He (8) ... his countrymen and attacked the invaders. And though he had never before won a (9) ..., he never afterwards had any considerable or decisive defeat.

Dolphins

Dolphins living in the Mediterranean Sea and other (1) ... waters, sometimes, playing and diving very gracefully, follow the ships into harbour usually when the sea is warm and the sun is high and bright in the sky.

The people of the early Rome and Greece knew a lot about the dolphins, they put (2) ... of them on coins and vases. They (3) ... dolphins to be friends of man and, in particular, friends of fishermen and sailors.

There are, indeed, a great number of stories how dolphins have shown their friendship for men, especially for children. Cases have been reported of dolphins saving people's lives.

New Zealand once had a dolphin which became very (4) ... and people from all over the world came to see it. It played, especially with children, allowing them to sit on its back. It (5) ... to be stroked with a boat oar.

Dolphins are from six to eight feet long, they jump out of the sea as beautifully as a (6)Baby dolphins are especially playful - just like kittens - and just as kittens they become (7) ... playful when they grow older.

English Characteristics

In a nation of many millions of people, there are many different kinds: good and bad, honest and dishonest, happy and unhappy.

The British people, who live in other countries are not fully typical of their nation. As usual they live a completely different life from the life in Britain. However, we can talk about some (1) ... things. The best-known (2) ... of the English, for example, is reserve. A reserved (3) ... is one who does not talk very much of strangers, does not show much emotion. He never tells you anything about himself. If English people are making a journey by train, they will try to find an empty compartment. If they have to share the compartment with a (4) ..., they may travel many miles without starting a conversation. If a conversation does start, (5) ... questions like "How old are you?" or even "What is your name?" are not easily asked. Questions like "Where did you buy your watch?" or "What is your salary?" are impossible.

Closely related to English reserve is English (6) If a person is, let us say, very good at golf, and someone asks him if he is a good player, he will probably give an answer like "I'm not (7)..." or "I think I'm quite good", or "Well, I'm very keen on golf."

The famous English sense of humour is similar. Its ideal is the (8) ... to laugh at oneself - at one's own faults. "He is a man of humour" or "He has no sense of humour" is often heard in Britain, where humour is so (9) ... prized.

Men from Mars?

Professor Zaitsev in his article "Visitors from Outer Space" supposes that many (1) ... with crews from Mars and other distant planets landed on the surface of the Earth in the past - perhaps some 12000 years ago.

To support this view he gives the following facts. On the walls of a Yugoslav monastery there are old (2) ... which show some strange objects in the sky. They resemble our present-day space-ships. In the Alps and in Central Asia (3) ... have found primitive pictures of human beings. They have big circles around their heads, which are very much like the transparent helmets of spacemen.

In Peru in South America some Indian tribes tell a very old legend about big golden and silver (4) ... which came to the Earth from the sky and people were born out of them.

Some very strange statuettes have been found in Japan. The figures are dressed like (5) ... and must be several thousand years old.

(6) ... in the Tibetan mountains have been found about 700 stone disks which resemble our gramophone records. They have deep spiral lines (7) ... into them. The disks were studied and the lines were found to be a mysterious kind of writing. The writing was deciphered. It told a (8) ... of many beings with big heads and very small bodies landing on the Earth. Some of these beings were killed by the local inhabitants.

So it is possible that "Visitors from Outer Space" did come to our (9) ... after all.

A Nice Cup of Tea

The English (1) ... of afternoon tea, it is said, goes back to the late eighteenth century when Anne, wife of the 7th Duke of Bedford, decided that she suffered from a "sinking feeling" around 5 p.m. and needed tea and cakes to bring back her strength. Before long, complaints were heard that "the labourers lose time to come and go to the tea-table". Tea had arrived. Fashionable Tea Rooms were opened for high society, and soon tea became the national drink of all classes.

Today the British drink more tea than any other nation. They drink it in (2) ... in the morning, round the (3) ... on winter afternoons and out in the (4) ... on sunny summer days. In times of trouble the kettle is quickly put on, the tea is made and comforting cups of the warm brown liquid are passed round.

Tea has even played its part in wars. The Duke of Wellington sensibly had a cup of tea before starting the battle of Waterloo, "to clear my head". In peace time (5) ... approval of the national drink came from the Victorian Prime Minister, Gladstone, who remarked: "If you are cold, tea will, (6) ... you, if you are heated, it will cool, if you are depressed, it will (7) ..., if you are excited, it will calm you".

What exactly is tea? Basically it is a (8) ... made from the dried leaves of a plant that only grows in hot countries. The British first heard of tea in 1598, and first tasted it in 1650. For nearly two centuries all tea was imported from China, until in 1823, a tea plant was found growing (9) ... in Assam in India. Sixteen years later the first eight chests of Indian tea were sold in London, and today, London's tea markets deal in tea from India, Sri Lanka and Africa more than from China.

New York is the largest city in the world and the biggest seaport. It is the money-centre of the United States. New York is situated in the north-east of the USA in the state of New York or the Empire State. In comparison with such ancient cities as Rome, Moscow, London or Paris, New York is quite young. It was founded in 1613 by Dutch settlers. A Dutchman, Peter Minuit, bought Manhattan Island from the Indians for 24 dollars and a barrel of rum. The Americans say that this was the best business deal ever made in New York. In 1613 the Dutch had built only four small houses in Manhattan. New Amsterdam was the first name of the city. After the English had taken over the city in 1626 it was renamed New York after the Duke of York who was commander of the English army.

During the War of Independence New York was an important political centre, and for five years from 1785 till 1790, the capital of the USA.

New York is a multinational city, the people that live in it speak seventy-five different languages. Manhattan is the name of an island which forms the heart of New York. The island is 13 miles long, 2 miles wide, and lies at the mouth of the Hudson River. Here is the heart of American business and culture, the city of sky-scrapers, of Broadway, of Wall Street, which is the centre of American money business. Francis Drake, one of the most famous of English sailors and pirates, was born in Plymouth, a seaport and the largest town in the south of England. The boy spent much of his time looking at the ships in Plymouth Harbour and talking to the seamen. His cousin, Captain Hawkins, told him long stories about his adventures at sea. At fifteen Francis was taken on a small ship and worked there for some years. The boy learned the duties of a sailor very soon and did his work so well that the master of the ship said the boy was born to be a great sailor. When Drake was twenty-five Captain Hawkins made him mate on his ship.

Drake's first sea-fight took place on the other side of the Atlantic Ocean where a small fleet of six English ships was attacked by Spanish men-of-war. Four of the English ships were burnt and only two – the one commanded by Hawkins and the other by Drake – came back to England.

Drake asked the king of Spain to pay him for his ships but was refused. Drake was very angry and promised he would take all he could from the king of Spain. And he did so.

George Stephenson was the first man who put a steam-engine on wheels. The English call him the "Father of Railways".

Stephenson was born in the family of a poor worker near the city of Newcastle, one of the industrial centres of England. The boy's father could not send him to school, so George helped his mother to look after the younger children in the family. His duty was to see that his little brothers and sisters did not get under the horses that pulled coal-cars on the wooden rails near his father's house. The boy looked at those rails every day and knew how often they were repaired. He decided then that iron rails could be better.

At eight Stephenson began to work as a horse-driver in a coal-mine. The boy could not read and write but he did not forget about the iron rails. Now he thought of a steam-engine which could do the work of twenty horses. He built a model in clay of such an engine. At nineteen he was put to work on a steam-engine. Now he had time to learn reading and writing. Soon he made a design of a locomotive, which moved on iron rails. But Stephenson could not build it as he had no money. Stephenson was fifty years old when some businessmen decided to build an iron railway and see how Stephenson's locomotive worked.

1. What nationality was George Stephenson?
 - 1) American. 2) English. 3) Spanish. 4) German.
2. Who is called the "Father of Railways"?

 - 3) Far from the city of Newcastle. 4) In London.
4. What did George Stephenson do in his childhood?
 - 1) Studied at school. 2) Worked in the garden. 3) Looked after his younger brothers and sisters. 4) Helped his father.
5. When did Stephenson begin to work as a horse-driver in a coal-mine?
 - 1) When he was 11. 2) When he was 8. 3) When he was 13. 4) When he was an adult.
6. What was the first model of a steam-engine made of?
 - 1) Wood. 2) Iron. 3) Clay. 4) Gypsum.
7. When was George Stephenson put to work on a steam-engine?
 - 1) At 15. 2) At 17. 3) At 21. 4) At 19.
8. Who made a design of a locomotive?
 - 1) George Stephenson's assistant. 2) George Stephenson.
 - 3) George Stephenson's son. 4) Isaac Newton.
9. Why didn't Stephenson build a locomotive himself?
 - 1) He didn't know how to do it. 2) He was prohibited to do it.
 - 3) He had no money. 4) He had nobody to help him.
10. How old was Stephenson when the iron railway was built?
 - 1) Forty-five. 2) Fifty. 3) Fifty-two. 4) Sixty.
